Information for CT Families

Pickup hours are 8am-8pm

If you give birth between 8pm-8am you will be responsible for storing the placenta until pickup hours. You can choose to buy a plug in cooler or desktop fridge for about $30 to keep at the hospital, or you may choose to take it home to be refrigerated. Some hospitals require the placenta to be out of the room within 2-hours. If you are using a plug-in cooler or fridge, they may not know you still have your placenta. However, it's your job to know your hospital's rules so that you can prepare accordingly. Please call once the placenta has been birthed, even if it's outside of pickup hours. This way we can arrange the pickup of the placenta for the earliest pickup window.

Please know that the placenta needs to be on ice or refrigerated within 3-hrs of the birth and can only be refrigerated for up to 3 days before it needs to be transferred to the freezer. Improper storage puts you at risk for illness.
